She leaned her cheek thoughtfully upon one gloved finger; possibly to disputy are smallness of nar hand; possibly because the poss suited her; probably for both reasons.

I regarded her with calm scrutiny.

"An appearance of impudence becomes you," I said, "but..."

"So do all appearances."

"Bot do all appearances."
"Pray don't think that you have exhausted my appearances."
She sank back in another attitude. "Why, you've known me an hour!"

She didn't answer for a minute. It was curious to watch her face change from merriment, through thought, to seriousness. First the laughter died gradually in her eyes; then the little curls and turns went out of her lips; then the dimples in the chasks smooth ed themselves out like simples widening into nothingness on the sea; then she lifted up her head, a wittle on one side, and looked at me with solemn child-eyes.

"Wherefore," said I, meaking half to myself, "we find it a sound theory not to expect too much from any one, to be thankful for what is given, and compassionate to what is missing."
"You look at the matter more calmly than I," she cried passionately, with her lips quivering.

She laughed again. As I have stated, she had a charming laugh.
"Most people's intellectual demands are small," she said. "The emotional demands are the difficulty."
"Ah, yes! A general answer is impossible there. You can never tell without trial; and when you try the demand changes; and when you fall you pay a price. It is always a risk."
"Is there no way of forecasting?" she inquired eagerly. "Cannot even an author with a reputation for analysis of character"—I wish I had—"make an estimate?" I shook my head,
"Scarcely, I think, He might make a good guess. Do you want me to sum up some one for you?"
"No-o. I merely wanted an example."

"Well." I said, smiling, "I'll take my unworthy self again, and my emotional needs. You would, I judge, answer to 90 per cent of them!

The Features of the Money and Stock

NEW YORK, August 19,-The stock market was strong and active again to-day and after a brief period of hesitation and reaction after the publication of the bank statement new buying orders in a few conspicuous stocks lifted them to the top level of the day. There was some realizing at other points under cover of this bidding up of prices, and a few weak spots made the market rather irregular at the close. Yester-

Breadstuffs and Provisions

CHICAGO-Advances of 1%c in September corn and %6%c in September

CHICAGO—Advances of 1½c in September corn and ½@½c in September wheat were the features of to-day's trading on the board of trade. In corn small receipts and large shipments drove the alarmed shorts to cover; in wheat, damaging rains in the northwest and strong foreign markets had a similar effect. Oats advanced ½@½c for September, and provisions closed unchanged to ½½c higher.

Whest opened strong at an improvement of ½c over yesterday's latest prices. The advance had substantial backing. Foreign markets showed sharp advances, Liverpool being up ½@½d, and London ½@½d. Heavy and continued rains were reported all over the northwest wheat fields, and many complaints of damage on that score were received. The strength shown by corn was also notable enough to affect shorts in wheat. During the first hour of the short sessions trading the market was quite active. September opened at 73¼@72%c and even at that price there was not much wheat offered. Shorts were active bilders for everything offered and the price got to 72½c followed, but the market of the next half hour touched 72%c.

The market then quieted down somewhat. There was a good deal of selling against weekly calls during the latter part of the session and one or two slight reactions resulted therefore, but the market had too much substantial support to admit of a material decline, and shortly before the close 72½c was again touched.

Liberal world's shipments were looked for and some selling was done on the support to admit of a material decine, and shortly before the close 72% was again touched.

Liberal world's shipments were looked for and some selling was done on the apprehension that they would unfavorably affect the Liverpool market Monday. A decrease of about a million bushels in the visible was looked for. September reacted to 72%c, and closed firm at that price.

Trading in corn was marked by great activity and strength in September. Continued small receipts and heavy shipments, and decreasing stocks alarmed the large short interest in that option and resulted in a rush for cover which advanced the price materially. Deferred futures advanced a little in sympathy. Receipts were 28 cars. Stocks here this week will decrease about 100,000 bushels. Country offerings were small. September ranged from 21%c to 22%c and closed 1%c higher at 52%c.

Oats were firm with corn September showing the mest strength. The advance was in spite of a large receipts, 608 cars. Commission houses were moderate buyers, and shorts covered to some extent. The cash demand was moderately good.

September ranged from 20%20%c and closed 48%c higher at 20%c.

Provisions were steady, but very dult business being mostly changing over. The cash demand for meats was fair, and this and the strength of grain resulted in a slight advance for most commodities. There was a little covering of sales made early in the week. At the close September pork was unchanged at 38 2%; September ribs a shade higher at 35 12%.
